@phil: Do we want to have it deploy to heroku every build or just a branch?

phil 8:38 AM

@benrose: I guess we can just do every time for now. I'm assuming the deploy will replace the previous one? In the future, or sooner if we have issues, we can switch to deployment only for a specific branch. For now let's use this as a non-prod integration environment.

@benrose: @mohammed.nauage I am giving up on Heroku build for now. It appears we need to better strategize how to build and deploy for Heroku (<https://devcenter.heroku.com/articles/slug-compiler>). I'm not sure if it makes sense to re-run the "build" multiple times (travis, heroku, etc.) - although it might.

Slug Compiler | Heroku Dev Center

Slugs are compressed and pre-packaged copies of an application, optimized for distribution by the Heroku dyno manager. Minimize slug size with .slugignore
